

ABSTRACT

This invention presents an anode zinc can for battery with excellent process-ability and corrosion resistance without adding lead to zinc, and a manganese dry battery made by using such a can.

Disclosed is a manufacturing method of the proposed can along with technical clues including material composition, optimum hardness, process temperature, and crystal grains with regard to metallographic aspect.